

HOW EFFECTIVE ARE THE PRESENT COVID 19 VIRUS VACCINES?

A legitimate question to ask, but one which has not yet been discussed anywhere in the news or the literature, is how effective are the antivirus vaccines by Moderna, Johnson&Johnson, Pfizer, AstraZeneca, and Sputnik in preventing deaths from the Corona 19 virus. According to the CDC these vaccines are supposed to be 90+ percent effective, yet this is not what the data suggests as shown in the following graph-

The cumulative world deaths have continued to rise over the last three months since the above vaccines first became available. This is not what one would expect, especially in the US where about half of the population has already been vaccinated. The number of US deaths from Corona 19 remains at about 18% of the world wide numbers. The cause for the continued acceleration of deaths could be the development of new Corona virus mutations against which the present vaccines are ineffective or that the vaccines themselves are not effective as supported by the fact that many inoculated persons are becoming re-infected with Covid 19. In either case the question arises if one should stop all the hyped injections pushed by the government, Dr. Fauci, newscasters, and others. It appears that the above vaccines are certainly less effective than flu vaccines. The pharmaceutical companies are profiting mightily at the expense of the taxpayers without really helping the population. It appears that the Corona virus is a highly virulent type of flu or cold virus and should be handled as such. At the present time less than 1.6 percent of infected individuals die from the virus, hence one should be able to live with it. A type of herd immunity should develop shortly without questionable further injections of vaccines which sometimes produce unwanted and harmful side-effects such as facial paralysis and blood clots. When herd immunity finally occurs, the above curve will start bending to the right. Like the common cold, the Corona 19 infections will probably never disappear entirely but will be seen to be under control when the above curve first shows a strong turn to the right. I expect this to happen toward the end of this year or early next year. Lockdowns should be eliminated immediately so that the world economies can recover.
